WEDDINGS.

St. Patrick's Roman Catholic Cathedral, in Fifthave., was yesterday, at noon, the scene of one of the most brilliant weddings ever celebrated in the building. The bride was Miss Elizabeth Elkins, a daughter of ex-Secretary Stephen B. Elkins, and the bridegroom was Edward E. Bruner. For some before the hour set for the wedding-11 o'clock—the entrance was beseiged by a crowd of men and women, but as admittance to the church by card of invitation, only a few of those gathered about the main door were permitted to enter. The beautiful sanctuary and altar in the Cathedral were effectively decorated with palms and white and yellow chrysanthemums. Bunches of the chrysanthemums set in a background of green and tied with long streamers of white satin ribbon dressed the altar railing, while on the altar, which was illuminated with a number of candles, were two large bunches of white chrysanaisle was stretched a white satin ribbon, beyond the Elkins and Bruner families were permitted to pass. The ribbon was attended by two acolytes robed in white.

As the guests began to arrive the organist, William F. Pecher, played an interesting programme of music, which was listened to with much attention by those already seated in the pews. It was 11:20 o'clock when the bridal procession moved up the centre aisle to the altar and almost

Dr. Thomas, Chantellor of the Diocese of Baltimore, and the Rev. P. Daly, were the Rev. J. F. Murphy and a number of acolytes Archbishop Corrigan, with his attendants, occupied a temporary throne erected on the side of the altar. Before beginning the marriage ceremony, Cardinal Gibbons, removing his mitre, the crown of his head being covered by a scarlet satia zuchetta, addressed the young couple in a loud, clear voice. Resuming his mitre at its close, he performed the ceremony which made the young people man and wife, as they knelt before him on the altar steps. After this ceremony the Cardinal and his assistants retired to the throne on the Gospel side of the altat while the bride and bridegroom took their places t a prie-dieu placed within the sanctury railing. The high corsage was adorned with a fichy of round point lace, and it was caught here and there with tiny diamond pins. A heavy fall of the lace was arranged to fall across the front of the skirt from the left side. The long tulle veil, fastened with two diamond sunbursts (presents from the bride's mother and the bridegroom) and an aigrette of orange blossoms, was worn over the face until after the marriage eremony. The bride carried a prayer-book bound a snake-skin and mounted in silver, and the six bridesmaids also carried prayer-books similarly bound and mounted. They were presented to them by the bride. The bridesmaids were Miss May Col-kett, of Philadelphia; Miss Grace Davis, of West Virginia; Miss Amy McMillan, of Detroit; Miss Madeleine Kerens, of St. Louis; Miss Rene Cou-dert, and Miss Bruner, sister of the bridegroom. Three were attired in pretty gowns of pink silk, rimmed with black, made with Louis XV waists, and black velvet hats, dressed with black ostrich dumes. The other three were dressed in costumes of pink and wore hats of black velvet.

Frederick Bruner attended his brother as best man. The ushers were W. W. Niles, John Gilroy, Davis Elkins, brother of the bride; H. Walter, Edgar H. Booth and H. J. Bruner, brother of the bridegroom. During the mass Miss Hilke, the so-

THE FERVOR OF THE SALVATIONISTS.

A CROWDED AND ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING OF

THE ARMY IN COOPER UNION. More genuine enthusiasm was shown last even-ing at the "consecration meeting" of the Salva-tion Army than at probably any of the meetings since the Columbian Congress of the Army has been in session. At one time on the platform of the Cooper Union were men and women on their knees, some with their foreheads to the floor, some lifting up their hands and praying. All the earnestness that characterizes these meetings was in evidence. "Praise the Lord," "Hallelujah." and "Glory, glory, glory," were the favorite expressions of delight and approval. Over 100 people offered themselves as candidates for the army's work.

General Ballington Booth conducted the meeting, Cooper Union, the previous sessions having been assisted by Mrs. Booth and a half hundred of th officers of the American Division. General Booth told a Tribune reporter before the meeting that the report that the international headquarters would be removed to New-York had no foundation what-be removed to New-York had no foundation whatever.

"Let every one who devotes his soul to God raise his or her hand," cried General Booth, in opening the meeting. In reply there was a sea of hands, of all shades, from the whitest of white English hands to the darkest of Ethiopian.

"Now then, all shout "Hallelujah," and a sound resembling the roar of a flood rolled over the building. Early in the meeting, when the delegates had seated themselves, General Booth cried: "Let us have enthusiasm—pienty of it. Don't mind the few 'toney' people in the audience, never mind the representatives of the press, but raise your voices to God!" And, on the subject of the press, he continued: "I may say that the press of America is the finest in the world."

"Hallelujah, we will pray for them," cried one enthusiastic lassie, tapping a tambourine as she spoke.

"Yes, yes," cried another, "Salvation for the world." And so it went on, the fervor growing apace until the meeting was over.

AUSTRO-GERMAN ALLIANCE OF 1879.

IS SAID TO HAVE AIDED IN PREPARING.

Barlin, Nov. 16.-Hans Blum is about to publish a work entitled "The German Empire Under Bismarck." The ex-Chancellor is said to have aided in preparing it. A notable chapter in the book contains an account of the origin of the Austro-German alliance of 1879. Alexander II. of Russia, Herr Blum says, had demanded menacingly from Germany's delegate at Novi-Eazar that the Frontier Commission support all of Russia's demands. Bis-marck refused to do this, and telegraphed to Count marck refused to do this, and telegraphed to Count Andrassy in Vienna, informing him of nil that had happened, and expressing fears that a Franco-Russian alliance was impending.

Andrassy replied that the only countermove possible was an Austro-German alliance. Andrassy and Bismarch had great difficulty in securing the approval of their sovereigns for the alliance. Emperor William had already acted without Bismarck's knowledge, and had sent Manteuffel to St. Petersburg to arrange an interview with the Czar at Alexandrowo. Finally the Emperor went thither and he and Alexander exchanged the most cordial assurances. It was too late, however, to overcome the current of feeling in Russia which Gortschakoff had started against Germany. Bismarck keenly resented Gortschakoff's policy at this time.

A DINNER FOR JAMES R. SHEFFIELD.

The dinner given by Good Government Club D to James R. If this is the proper time, I shall be found, too, aiding in every way the divor ement of municipal and National politics. As for home rule, I am for that with one qualification, and that is that nothing shall be done toward giving more power over this great city of ours to Tammany Hall."

Mr. Sheifield was heartly received and his speech was

ALEXANDER SALVINI'S NEW PLAY

Philadelphia, Nov. 10.—The Walnut Street Theatre held a large audience to-night, when Alexander Salvini produced for the first time on any stage a play by Paul Kester called "Zamar." The new drama is designed as a companion play to "Don Caccar de Bazan" and "The Three Guardsmen" and belongs to the romantic school. It is in five acts, with the scenes laid in Spain in the reign of Phillip II, whose domastic establishments furnish the foundation for the incidents. Mr. Salvini as Zamar was rewarded with two or three curtain calls at the end of each act. Excellent support was given by William Redmurd. John A. Lane, William Harris, Eleanor Morette and Maud Dixon. Dr. Mariling spoke in the highest terms of the new pastor of the church, and urged all the offi-cers and departments of the congregation to do their utmost to aid him in carrying on the great work of the church. The doctor in ending his address, made a strong appeal to those who have church letters, and had not presented them, to identify themselves with some church in their neighborhood and heartily enter into its work. Up on the top floor of the Phenix Building 200 men and women are employed, day and night, as telegraph operators, by one of the great telegraph companies.

To hear the constant din of the clicking instruments one would hardly suppose that the operators have much time for recreation. Nevertheless, when the chief operator is not near, many an amusing incident occurs aimost daily.

One of the strictest rules of the office, which has been recently enforced, is the one which prohibits operators to converse during working hours. To leave their desk while on duty is also forbidden.

Only a few days ago two young men were sitting at one desk opposite each other. One of them was sending "press" to New-Orleans, while the other was receiving measages from the same point. The sender was addicted to the use of tobacco. His supply had run out. Looking across the other side of the desk he spied a plug at the side of his vis a vis.

The young man was in a quandary. To ask for the covered weed would have been a breach of the rules. It was too far for him to reach, so he resolved on another plan.

Stopping in his message he asked the receiver in New-Orleans to tell his partner on the other side to hand him a "chew." "Click, click, click," came the response over the instrument on the other side of the glass partition. The tobacco was thrown ever, and one young man was made happy.

MR. NEAL, HIS OPPONENT, "HACKED" A LITTLE AT THE SILVER QUESTION AT THE END WHEN HE SAW HE WAS BEATEN-NOT

> READY TO TALK ABOUT HAWAII-HE IS HERE FOR HIS WIFE'S

Governor William McKinley, Jr., of Ohio, accompanied by Mrs. McKinley and Colonel and day afternoon. The party came on the New-York Central Railroad in the Western express train, which was due at 2:10 o'clock, but came into the Grand Central Station half an hour late. They were met upon their arrival by the Governor's brother, Ebner, and a party of friends, among whom were several prominent Republicans. After hearty handshaking all around and congratulations over the recent Republican victory the Governor was driven to the Windsor Hotel, where he will occupy the suite of apartments usually assigned to him on his visits to New-York.

After dinner the party went to Abbey's Theatre to see Henry Irving. They were the guests of H. H. Kohlsaat, of "The Chicago Inter Ocean," and Melville E. Stone.

Governor McKinley was seen at his hotel immediately after his return from the theatre. He mediately after his return from the theatre. He said that he was in the best of health and spirits, only a little tired after the struggle of the last ten weeks. When asked about the object of his visit, the Governor said that his principal reason for coming east was the state of his wife's health. She wisned to consult a New-York physician, and he would also utilize the time in recruiting and gaining a little needed rest.

Referring to the report that he was here to confer with the members of the Republican National Committee, who, it has been said, are starting a McKinley "boom" for the Presidential campaign of 1896, he laughed and said that there was no truth in it whatever. He said he might accidentally meet some of the Republican leaders, but would not go in search of them.

Republican leaders, but would not go in search of them.

When asked if he was not jubilant over his great victory in Ohio, the Governor replied: "I am not exultant, only pleased and gratified. The battle was fought almost solely on the tariff issue. No other question was brought into the fight until nearly the close, when Mr. Neal, who saw his case was hopeless, hacked at the sliver question a little. The vast majority rolled up in Ohio showed conclusively that the workingmen had learned something since the vote of last year, and now see the folly of their course. They were clearly dissatisfied with the course of the present Administration."

The Governor was asked his opinion of the President's stand in the Hawaiian affair, but he said that he did not care to criticise Presi-

"And it would take considerable time," he added, with a smile, "to find out why President Cleveland has taken his present course." his present course."

Governor McKinley said that he had favored

General Harrison's views of the situation, and naturally did not take kindly to the attitude of the present Administration.

He seld he had had so much politics of late that he did not care to speculate at present on the question of the issues of the campaign of 1895, and there was no telling what might take 1895, and there was no telling what might take place during the next three years, but he thought the tariff would cut no small figure in the coming struggle. Governor McKinley has promised to deliver a speech before the Home Market Club, of Hoston, on November 25. As it is the leading protectionist organization of New-Empland, he sold that his subject would probably be the tariff question. He said he did not know how long he should remain in town, and might go away within forty-eight hours. and might go away within forty-eight hours, possibly to Atlantic City.

THE HAWAIIAN IMBROGLIO.

A CLEAR VIOLATION OF THE CONSTITUTION.

From The New-York Sun. Nothing can be clearer, than that if Minister Wills or Admiral Irwin lifts a finger for the purpose of upsetting the recognized Hawaiian Government, he will have committed an act of war; and, if that act has been sanctioned by President Cleveland, he will have deliberately broken the oath which, on the 4th of March, he took to obey the Constitution.

THE OUEEN RESPONSIBLE FOR HER FALL.

Minister Stevens and the United States marines cannot be held responsible for the deposing of the Queen. She deposed herself by consenting to a usurpatory movement, which ended contrary to her expectations. President Cleveland had better abandon his present quixotic scheme of burnishing rotten thrones and championing dissolute and discarded queens. rotten thrones carded queens. THE PROPLE OF HAWAH WILL RULE.

The United States will be strong enough to re-store the brutal and licentious Queen, but it is safe to say that her reign will be very brief. The good people of Hawali are determined that she shalt not rule, and they will doubtless have their way in spite of the attitude of our Government.

A SACRIFICE TO PERSONAL RIVALRY, rom The St. Paul Pioneer Press. There is, unfortunately, a probability that our interests in Hawaii will be sacrificed to the eager desire of Secretary Creshan to score a point against his ancient and implacable rival, ex-President Har-

TIME A LITTLE LIGHT WAS SHED.

From The Buffalo Commercial. It is reported from Washington that there mass of documentary evidence in the posses of the State Department on which the Administion confidently relies for justification of Hawaiian policy advised by Secretary Gres and approved by President Cleveland. If suct the case the sooner the American public is the and approved by President Cleveland. If such is the case the sooner the American public is taken into the confidence of the Government the better for the Administration's credit and the possibility of winning public approval of its attitude. For it is apparent that the country is not taking kindly to the idea of restoring the late monarchy in those islands by the aid of American Naval forces, under any circumstances.

STILL MANOEUVRING IN THE DARK. From The Youngstown (Ohio) Telegram. From The Youngstown (Ohio) Telegram.
Indications point to a greater moddle than ever in Hawaitan affairs. The Administration's intentions are being carefully guarded by the President, who does not seem disposed to trust "my people" in an affair which may mean loss of blood and treasure to hundreds of Americans. We don't blame him, however, because if we were engaged in such business we should want to do it in secret, A very dark night and a back alley would suit best.

From The Detroit Journal.

President Cleveland must know by this time that Secretary Gresham's recommendations are not only repudiated and condemned by the best intelligency of the country, but that, according to the test mony of competent witnesses, many of his assertions are wickedly false and misleading.

THE PRESIDENT'S RESPONSIBILITY. THE PRESIDENT'S RESPONSIBILITY.
From The Beaten Journal.
For every drop of blood that may be shed in the effort to restore a corrupt and degraded monarchy in Hawaii by the forcet of the United states, for every act of violence, for all loss of property, and for the mischlef done by supplanting an orderly, progressive and Christian Government by one steeped in immorality and barbarism, President Cleveland must be held responsible. It is new business for the United States to undertake the setting up of a monarchy—and such a monarchy!

LET THE PROOFS BE SHOWN.

From The Scranton Tribune.

If Secretary Gresham yet has any proof to submit in behalf of his side of the case, now is the time to make his title clear. Otherwise he must soon be rated as a man who makes damaging assertions without sufficient evidence to sustain them. And such a man can do infinite mischief in the position of Secretary of State.

SIGNS OF CRITICISM REACHING HOME. From The Providence Journal.

The decision at the last Cabinet meeting not to make public at once the full report of Commissioner Blount would seem to indicate that the Administration is smarting a little under the sharp criticisms which its reported Hawaiian policy has called out. THE WHOLE BUSINESS A FARCE.

From The Chicago Tribune. The whole business is in the nature of a farce. The Queen having been once unsested, the Administration sets her up to be knocked down again, and leaves her in that sorry plight. It therefore makes itself responsible for this second humiliation; if any bloodshed occurs it must be responsible for that also. The action of the Administration in this whole business has been unbusiness like, unpatriotic and un-American.

In 1859 he went on a special mission to Naples, and then served successfully at Coburg. Vienna, Athens, Frankfort, Darmstadt, Stuttgart and Munich, winning frequent promotions and making work and his assured knowledge of every subject in hand.

Sir Robert's first berth as Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentlary was at Lisbon, whither he was sent in 1876. Five years later he went to Madrid to fill a like place, and finally, in 1884, was made Ambassador at St. Petersburg, where the remainder of his life was spent. The cause of his being taken away from Germany in 1875, a field in which he had so long served and for which he was so peculiarly well fitted, was his antagonism to Prince Bismarck. That great man had then reached the zenith of his power, and Distracil (Lord Beaconsfield) desired to work in harmony with him. To facilitate the accomplishment of this purpose, he removed Sir Robert Morier from Munich and promoted him to Lisbon. Sir Robert found St. Petersburg much more to his liking than Madrid, and his intimate knowledge of the Eastern question made him a valuable representative of the British Crown at the court of that sovereign who holds it his manifest destiny to solve that question by absorbing the whole scene of its existence.

Sir Robert Morier was a typical Briton in every sense of the word, both morally and physically: of herculean build, he impressed strangers with a sense of power, which was borne out in his acts. His broad shoulders betokened a readiness to bear any responsibility, no matter how onerous, and his square law, partly concealed by white side whishers, gave evidence of the determination of his character. He was a great favorite of the Cxar, who, a year ago, when the F

WILLIAM H. BEERS.

William H. Beers, ex-president of the New-York Life Insurance Company, died yesterday morning at his home, No. 25 East Forty-eighth-st., from heart disease. His physician, Dr. W. H. King, said last night that Mr. Beers had not been well for the last eight years, having suffered in that time from organic heart disease, which was aggravated by rheumatism and pleurisy at different times. Last June he went to Europe, but was forced to come back to this country on account of illness. Since then he gradually grew weaker, and for the last few weeks had been confined to his bed. His funeral, which will be held to-morrow, will be private.

Mr. Beers was born in Philadelphia on April 16. beckkeeper in a large commission house. He remained with that house for a number of years, and it was there that he acquired those business habits and technical knowledge of accounts which made him an eminently successful business man. Subsequently be entered the paymaster's department in the United States Navy. Several years later he joined one of the large express companies, but resigned his place in 1851 to accept that of accountant to the New-York Life Insurance Company. In 1864 he was made, the actuary of the company and he also acted as casaver. Mr. Beers was chosen vice-president of this company in 1885. From that time until the day on which he resigned from the company he was the leading man in it, and when, in 1886. Morris Franklin, its president, died, Mr. Beers was elected to succeed him. In the last years of Mr. Franklin's life Mr. Beers had virtually done the work of the executive office. He negotiated with agents, mapped out their plans, devised the measures of progress and attended to all the details of the business. He was held in high confidence by the sfinance committee, who intrusted him with the investment of the company's funds.

In the summer of 1891 charges were made that 1821. At an early age he went into business as a who intrusted him with the investment of the company's funds.

In the summer of 1891 charges were made that Mr. Beers was extravagant in his management of the company, and that he kept men in it who were incompetent. The fight between Mr. Beers and his accusers was long and fierce. Finally he was forced to resign, in February, 1892. His resignation was accepted by the directors. He was retired on a pension of $51.200 a year, but his opponents contested the validity of this action, and it was destared by the lower courts to be thegal. The case was then carried to the higher courts, but the affair was compromised, and Mr. Beers received $5,000 a year.

He leaves a wife and two daughters. One of his daughters was married to Henry Tuck, who is first vice-president of the company. Mr. Beers was a member of the Union League Club.

The resolution also called attention to the medical examiners who have replaced the coroners in Massachusetts, and called upon the Constitutional Convention to sanction the necessary changes in the Constitution and laws of the State of New-York. Copies will be sent to county and other local medical societies of the State.

The resolutions were almost unanimously adopted after brief discussion, Dr. Herg wanted the academy to "keep out of politics," and voted in the negative.

ROBERT GARRETT NOT SERIOUSLY ILL.

Baltimore, Nov. 16.-Considerable excitement was caused last night by a report that Robert Garrett caused last night by a report that Robert Garrett was critically ill, and was not expected to live. There is no truth in the rumor that the ilines of Mr. Garrett is critical. He has not yet recovered from the severe cold which he contracted during his recent visit to Chicago, but astile from this indisposition his condition is not such as to cause any immediate alarm to his friends. Dr. Jacoba, who is constantly in attendance on him, said that Mr. Garrett was convalencing rapidly, and in a few days would be out of doors.
